

How to Get Started

If you think collaborative law may work for your family dispute, these are the steps to take:

- ◆ Talk about Collaborative Law with your spouse, or other party with whom you are in conflict and share this brochure.
- ◆ Each of you then selects his/her own attorney who is trained in Collaborative Law. Either of you may meet with more than one attorney before selecting counsel. If you already have an attorney who is not trained in Collaborative Law, suggest the process to your attorney.
- ◆ An informational meeting with your chosen attorney can help you decide whether the process suits you.
- ◆ Both parties and both attorneys sign the agreements and guidelines of the Collaborative Law process. Each party meets first with his/her counsel, and then all attend the first collaborative meeting.

Who we are

Unaffiliated, Independent, Like-minded Family Law Attorneys Trained in the Collaborative Law Process

For More Information about Collaborative Law or referral to a member of Collaborative Lawyers of Tarrant County,
see our website at www.aboutcollaborativelaw.com

Collaborative Lawyers of Tarrant County

307 West 7th Street, Suite 1905
Fort Worth, Texas 76102
www.aboutcollaborativelaw.com

Collaborative Lawyers
of Tarrant County

Committed to the Resolution of Family Disputes with Dignity in a Non-adversarial Manner

